The Restaurant Law Center, by its attorney Jenner & Block LLP, respectfully moves for leave to file the accompanying non-party brief as amicus curiae in support of Plaintiff-Respondents, pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 809.19(7). Amicus states the following in support of its motion:

1. Motions for leave to file amicus curiae briefs by non-parties—such as industry groups like the Restaurant Law Center—are often granted because courts recognize they may be of assistance in understanding the significance of the material issues and provide useful context as the Court considers a particular case.

2. “Even when a party is very well represented, an amicus may provide important assistance to the court.” Neonatology Assocs., P.A. v. Comm’r of Internal Revenue, 293 F.3d 128, 132 (3d Cir. 2002) (Alito, J.). “Some friends of the court are entities with particular expertise not possessed by any party to the case. Others argue points deemed too far-reaching for emphasis by a party intent on winning a particular case. Still others explain the impact a potential holding might have on an industry or other group.” Id. (internal quotation marks and citation omitted); see also Prairie Rivers Network v. Dynegy Midwest Generation, LLC, 976 F.3d 761 (7th Cir. 2020) (Scudder, J., in chambers) (describing how amicus briefs may aid the court). In this case, the proposed amicus brief fulfills all three of these functions.

3. The Restaurant Law Center is a public policy organization affiliated with the National Restaurant Association, the world’s largest foodservice trade association. The industry is comprised of over one million restaurants and other foodservice outlets that represent a broad and diverse group of owners and operators—from large national outfits with hundreds of locations and billions in revenue, to small, single-location, family-run neighborhood restaurants and bars, and everything in between. The industry employs over 15 million people, and is the nation’s second-largest private-sector employer. Through regular participation in amicus briefs on behalf of the industry, including in cases like this one, the Restaurant Law Center provides courts with the industry’s perspective on legal issues in pending cases that may have industry-wide implications.

4. Amicus and its members have a significant interest in the important issues raised by this case. Many businesses in the restaurant and hospitality industry have sought business interruption coverage under “all risk” commercial insurance policies for the physical loss or damage they suffered as a direct result of unprecedented state and local executive shutdown orders. Many of those restaurants have been unreasonably and categorically denied coverage on the basis that they, supposedly, have not incurred physical loss or damage even though their properties have been rendered non-functional, detrimentally altered, and physically impaired as a result of these shutdown orders. Therefore, although whether a claim for coverage has been stated depends on the specific factual allegations in the complaint, amicus and its members have a strong interest in highlighting for the Court why certain issues raised in this appeal are important to the restaurant industry as a whole.

5. In its brief, amicus will offer the Court a useful industry-wide perspective on the issues in this appeal. In particular, the amicus brief will provide the Court with important information about the state of the restaurant industry, about the broader landscape of business interruption cases being pursued by restaurants and hospitality companies across the country, and about the industry's perspective on those cases. Because amicus represents the restaurant and hospitality industry as a whole, the perspective of amicus may differ from that of the parties. In addition, the information and experience that amicus can offer goes beyond what the parties can provide.

6. Other federal and state appellate courts have recently granted the Restaurant Law Center permission to file briefs in business interruption cases involving state law issues similar to those in this case.¹

7. Amicus certifies that it sought the parties' positions on this motion via email on Thursday, July 29, 2021 and on Monday, August 2, 2021. Counsel for Plaintiff-Respondents and counsel for Defendant-Appellant have not responded to indicate their position.

WHEREFORE, given its substantial interest in this case, amicus respectfully requests that this Court grant leave to file a brief supporting Respondents and affirming the judgment below.
